

The Angel of Marye's Heights

BATTLE FOR FREDERICKSBURG

"Winter Encampment and Battle In the Streets"

Union sharpshooters fired their muskets at a lone Confederate soldier, until the command "cease fire" was heard. Do not shoot that man -- he is too brave to die! Sergeant Richard Kirkland crawled among the enemy wounded giving water and aid till he ran out of water. "The Angel of Marye's Heights" returned to the protection of the stone wall, the sunken road, and his post.

Experience the Battle for Marye's Heights with the reenactment of Sergeant Kirkland's heroic act of Christ-like compassion and sacrifice during one of America's costliest battles of the Civil War.

Battle of Fredericksburg - Zoar, Ohio

We are creating another event that we hope will be as successful as our "Battle on the Ohio Erie Canal" event that is held every other year. This event will take place this year in conjunction with the Zoar Community Association's Christmas In Zoar. For a first time event we are looking to see couple hundred reenactors to get our feet wet. Very few events are held in December, but for those of you who enjoy wearing your greatcoat and spooning, this is the event for you. Come out for the day or camp out for the weekend. The registration fee is the same as the admission fee for spectators. You get admission to our Christmas event, including holiday crafts, fold art, private home tours and much more. This is primarily a winter encampment and living history event. You will burn some powder, but our battle will last no longer than 30 minutes with the focus being on the heroics of Sgt. Kirkland, keeping with our Christmas theme. Candlelight tours of the camps will take place Saturday night after the tree lighting service and the streets are lined with luminaries. Please see our web site www.zca.org to get more information about the Christmas In Zoar event. Please have a delegate fill our the registration form for your company, so that we may get a head count. You will pay at the ticket booths and receive a wrist band that will give you access to the event for the weekend.
